

A Notable Example of Cool Courage

Commendable Action of the Crew of the Burned Ship Delaware—Coolness and Bravery Saved Many Lives.

New York, July 9.—The burning of the steamship Delaware off Barnegat Inlet, Friday, furnished a striking contrast to the story of horror, death and cowardice connected with the going down of La Burgogne. While the vessel burned rapidly and fiercely in the open sea, still through the courage and bravery of the officers and the splendid discipline and devotion of the crew they brought off all hands without the loss of a single life, there being in all seventy-five passengers, nine women and three children.

It was 11:45 when the officers passed from state room to state room, rousing the passengers. In each case the officers after knocking, said, "Get dressed and come on deck as soon as possible. There is a fire on board the ship. Do not be alarmed, there is plenty of time and no danger. Boats will be waiting for you as soon as you reach the deck." Under these clear and calmly-delivered directions the passengers came out frightened, but orderly, and assembled on deck, where some of the women broke down. Captain Ingram and his officers walked up and down assuring them there was no cause for alarm; that boats were being prepared; that the sea was calm and the land only a short distance away. While the officers were making the rounds of the state rooms for the second time, Stewardess Hill came up with an arm full of life-preservers, which she distributed among the women. One of them half hysterically dropped hers on deck. "Oh I can never get it on," she wept. "I'll fix it for you," said Miss Hill cheerily, and having bundled up the trembling woman, she went on to the next.

"All women to the first boat!" shouted Captain Ingram.

With encouraging words the sailors detailed for the duty passed women and children along into the boat, but when the boat was being lowered one young woman remained on deck. "Get in Madam," cried the captain. "There's plenty of room." "I'll stay with my husband, sir," she replied. "I'm not afraid." She was Mrs. J. D. McClassen, of Charleston, S. C., a bride of three weeks, with her husband. She was lowered into the next boat.

Captain Ingram was the last to leave the burning ship, and he did not go until he had satisfied himself by the enumeration of his passengers that no one could have been left on board.

Not a person was lost; not even one injured.

Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of W. M. Bush, clerk of the hotel Dorrance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhoea, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duty at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
